
THE FOURTH ISSUE OF EURASIAN WORLD JOURNAL HAS BEEN PUBLISHED

18.04.2019

We are pleased to present the fourth issue of Eurasian World to your kind perusal.

In this issue, while examining on the one hand the current developments in the broad Eurasian geography during the last six months (for example, the resolution of Macedonia's name issue with mutual agreement by the interested parties) on the other hand, we have aimed at focusing on several issues of interest in our geography. For the first time in this issue, we have addressed the Cyprus problem. We present hereby the article titled A New Chapter: Time for Cooperation in Cyprus about the viewpoint of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus regarding this problem awaiting a solution for a long time now.

And of course, we have not forgotten the principle of focusing on a specific topic in every issue. Indeed, in this edition, we examine the water problem across Eurasia but especially in Central Asia. You will find three different articles in our pages dealing with this problem of vital importance for the peoples of this geography.

AVİM is pleased to present the 4th issue which covers the analysis and evaluation of the developments in the Eurasian region by Turkish and foreign academicians and experts.
